The "Fort Worth 5," is a name attributed to five individuals who were subpoenaed to testify before a Federal Grand Jury in Fort Worth, Texas, inquiring into smuggling of arms to Northern Ireland. They were granted immunity from prosecution by a Judge in Fort Worth and were jailed on contempt of court charges following their continued refusal to testify. This case, which was investigated by the U. S. Treasury Department, has received considerable publicity in Irish newspapers both in the U. S. and abroad. The FBI conducted no active investigation regarding this matter. According to news media accounts, the five individuals involved were Daniel Crawford, Mathias Reilly, Paschal Morahan, Kenneth Tierney and Thomas Laffey.

The above information conflicts with other information in possession of the Bureau which was received by other field offices from sources who are providing coverage in the Irish field. Bureau files indicate that the IRA is not active in the U. S. and has no chapters nor official representatives in the U. S.; however, there are several organizations active in the U. Re: Francis Joseph Mc Manus, aka 105-241866

Capitol Hill, Washington, D. C., briefed Congressmen and their staff and were subsequently guests of honor at the reception hosted by two Congressmen. Local organizers of the above activities included Father Sean Mc Manus of Baltimore (identifiable with Father Sean Gerald Mc Manus, Bufile 105-236834, BAfile 105-18151) and the Irish Northern Aid Committee (INAC), Bufile 87-6299, MTfile 87-2700.

Emiril O'Bradaigh, according to enclosed Dublin teletype, is President of the Provisional Sinn Fein, a legal political organization. O'Bradaigh is also a well known official of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), the illegal military arm of the Sinn Fein. He has been involved in top-level planning of Provisional Sinn Fein/IRA activities and thus, since the Provisional IRA has been the main source of violence in Northern Ireland, it is felt that O'Bradaigh bears heavy responsibility for a serious and sustained campaign of terrorism. It was further felt that O'Bradaigh will raise monies in the U. S. for the IRA.

Robetel advised recipients of Mc Manus' status as a member of Parliament from Northern Ireland and his identification with Provisional IRA objectives.

Above activities of subjects in Washington, D.C., indicates a possible violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938, as amended.

Recipients immediately endeavor to ascertain whereabouts and activities of subjects as well as any information corroborating the above State Department information. Specifically, WFO should contact established sources to verify the above, check INS and State Department records and verify their departure from the U. S.

All offices submit results of investigation in form suitable for dissemination by cover airtel.

In order to coordinate the above investigation, WFO is being designated office of origin in captioned matters.

Memorandum

TO: DIRECTOR, FBI (61-7606)
FROM: SAC, NEW YORK (100-7828)(P)
SUBJECT: IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY (IRA) IS-NORTHERN IRELAND

DATE: NOV. 20 1973

NY has maintained contact with its established sources and also with other US Government agencies relative to Irish activities in the NY area. The situation at the present time is permeated with political undertones, and financial contributions in the past have been rather substantial and the Irish Northern Aid Committee (INAC) has collected the bulk of this money and has forwarded same to its representatives in Northern Ireland. As investigations have disclosed, some of the money collected in the US is finding its way into the hands of the militant Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA). These financial contributions currently are being forwarded from the headquarters of INAC, Bronx, NY, either by bank drafts or by personal courier.

Investigations conducted by the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau over the past year and a half, has to a great extent discouraged the purchase of weapons for the IRA in the US. The jailing of "The Fort Worth Five" has also been a contributory factor in discouraging individuals from purchasing weapons in the US.
The jailing of "The Fort Worth Five," has also had an opposite effect on many Irish Americans in the New York area in that they feel that they, "The Fort Worth Five," were held in Texas without cause, and the recent decision to free these individuals could very well lead to renewed efforts by Irish-American groups to obtain weapons not only in the US but elsewhere.

The recent appearance in the New York area on various television shows by representatives of the present and previous Government of Ireland has not had the desired effect, that is, of discouraging Irish-American organizations from contributing money to Northern Ireland. The general reaction of representatives of the Government of Ireland appealing to Irish Americans to stop their contributions, has not the desired effect, but in many instances, the contributions have increased because they look upon these representatives of the Government of Ireland as mere puppets of the British Government.

New York will continue to maintain contact with its sources and will endeavor to develop quality informants who would be in a position to furnish significant information relative to the financial contributions being collected in the New York area and elsewhere and the methods used to funnel this money into Northern Ireland.

New York, at this point, cannot suggest any way in which this money can be legally stopped.

According to the registration statement filed with the United States Department of Justice, INAC claims that all contributions are being used for humanitarian purposes in Northern Ireland.

Enclosed herewith for London for information.

As Legat, London, is aware, there is no statutory jurisdiction for the FBI to conduct investigations in an effort to develop information regarding the above items. These are matters under the primary jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Service and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, respectively. Any information developed by the FBI concerning the above items during the course of other investigations is immediately disseminated to the appropriate U.S. agency as well as Legat, London.

Re: Irish Republican Army (IRA)

The FBI has alerted confidential sources who are in a position to develop information regarding Irish matters to be particularly alert for any information in this regard. The FBI is also participating with other interested U. S. Government agencies in a program that has been established to provide closer cooperation and coordination among the various U. S. Government agencies having an interest in the Irish situation and thus it is hoped that some of the above-mentioned gaps can be removed through the effective operation of the above program.

INTERNAL SECURITY - IRELAND

On February 28, 1974, a representative of the U.S. Department of Treasury, Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Bureau (ATF), Falls Church, Virginia, furnished the following information:

During the past several months ATF has been conducting an investigation concerning a resident and businessman both from Washington, D. C., allegedly involved in smuggling weapons to Ireland. About February 15, 1974, they illegally purchased $15,000 worth of weapons from a gun-wholesaler in Laurel, Maryland. These weapons were picked up by a truck transported to Montgomery County, Maryland, where they were transferred to a rental truck being driven by a chauffeur (phonetic). The weapons were then transported to New York where the alleged illegal sale was consummated. Two of the allegedly belonging to an organization of Irish nationals and sympathizers who have been purchasing weapons for the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Memorandum

TO: DIRECTOR, FBI

FROM: SAC, NEWARK (105-31730) (P*)

SUBJECT: IS - IRELAND

RE: Legat, London; letter to Bureau, 1/21/74.

On 2/6/74, Resident Special Agent, U. S. Customs, 400 Delancey Boulevard, Newark, New Jersey, was contacted concerning instant matter by SAs. He recalled no investigations by his office of arms. Any legal shipment of arms abroad would require an export license. For a search of U. S. Customs indices, the name of the company involved would be needed.

On 3/6/74, Alchohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division, U. S. Treasury, 970 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey, advised SAs that he could recall no instance of supporters of the I. R. A. are active in the United States in efforts to purchase arms for eventual shipment to Ireland. He said that it is not so difficult for the weapons to be secured; the real problem for the I. R. A. supporters is how to get them out of the United States and into Ireland. He had heard of cases where attempts were made to smuggle arms to Ireland in coffins and by shipment from Canada or coal carrying ships. He agreed that a check could be made on any weapon confiscated.

Buy U. S. Savings Bonds Regularly on the Payroll Savings Plan
from the I. R. A. and thought to have come through the United States. If the weapon was ever legally in the United States, the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division should be able to trace it to its last lawful purchaser. REQUEST OF THE BUREAU Enclosed herewith for London is one copy of re NLKlet.

Recipients are reminded that violations of illegal exportation of arms from the U. S. are matters under the primary jurisdiction of U. S. Customs and although the FBI maintains an intelligence interest in individuals who are illegally exporting arms to the IRA, we do not conduct active investigations. Information received in this regard is furnished to U. S. Customs for appropriate investigation.

It is noted that U. S. Customs has a representative in London; therefore, Legat, London, disregard leads set forth in referenced Newark communication and refer any future similar inquiries to the Customs representative in London.

TORONTO — (CP) — An RCMP spokesman said yesterday that several illegal shipments of weapons have been seized in four Southern Ontario centres and seven men born in Ireland have been arrested.

RCMP believe the shipments were destined for the Irish Republican Army, which is waging a guerrilla war against the British in Northern Ireland.

Insp. George Scott said a machine-gun, semi-automatic rifles, hand grenades, Sten guns and parts were seized in recent raids in St. Catharines, Tavistock and Toronto and at the United States border at Windsor.

Literature seized in the raids indicated that the weapons were to be shipped to the IRA in Ireland, some via the U.S., he said.

Belfast-born

Six of the seven arrested were born in the Northern Ireland city of Belfast, police said. All have been charged with conspiracy to export arms.

Joseph Myles, 51, of Garden City, Mich., was arrested Monday on the Ambassador Bridge as he was attempting to leave Canada.

Fifteen high-power rifles of the type issued to NATO forces and manufactured by the Fabrique National (FN) in Belgium were confiscated, an RCMP spokesman in Windsor said.

Myles' arrest led to further seizures and arrests, Insp. Scott said.

Dear Sir:

IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY

I am greatly disturbed by a statement apparently issued off the record by someone in the San Antonio office of your Bureau, giving a fund-raising drive for the Provisional Irish Republican Army a clean bill of health.

This incredible message appears on page 6-B, San Antonio Express-News, June 22, 1974:

"The FBI gave the I.R.A. and its supporters a clean bill of health in the United States."

Surely, the financial support of a terrorist group which is outlawed in both Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic should not be promoted by the FBI. I urge you to discuss this with the San Antonio office, FBI, and hope some clarification can be made.

Yours sincerely,

J. F. C. Moore

Dear Sir:

I am greatly disturbed by a statement, apparently issued offhand by someone in the San Antonio office of your bureau, giving a fund-raising drive for the Provisional Irish Republican Army "a clean bill of health."

Surely, the financial support of a terrorist group, which is outlawed in both Northern Ireland and Irish Republic, should not be promoted by the F.B.I. I say "promoted" because this statement will surely be used in soliciting local government approval.

I urge you to discuss this with the San Antonio office, F.B.I., and hope some clarification can be made.

Yours sincerely,

J. F. C. Moore

IRA Donations

Perhaps you could tell me of any city permits I might require in order to solicit contributions for the IRA in Ireland.

G. E. J.

Before we checked with the city, we first discreetly discussed this with the FBI, without giving your identity. We were afraid your attempts to solicit funds for the provisional Irish Republican Army would be illegal or in some way suspect.

The FBI, however, gave the IRA and its supporters a clean bill of health in the United States. The only trouble IRA has had in the U.S. was an attempt at gun running on the East Coast.

So you may solicit support and donations for the IRA without being placed on any "subversive" list, FBI officials said.

Whether the city will give its blessing to the solicitation depends on information you supply to the Better Business Bureau and the City Solicitation Commission.

The forms for an application to solicit have already been mailed to you. They should be filled out and notarized and returned to the Better Business Bureau.

If everything appears in order, you will be given a solicitation permit. The permit costs nothing.

Dear Mr. Moore:

I have received your letter of June 22 and appreciate the interest which prompted you to write.

It is my wish to advise you that the information which was published by the "San Antonio Express-News" in the column "Action Express" did not accurately portray information supplied to them by our San Antonio Office. For your information, a representative of the newspaper contacted one of the officials at the FBI Office in San Antonio and asked if it was illegal to solicit contributions for the Irish Republican Army. The newspaper was advised that solicitation of such funds was not a violation of any federal law within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI. No one at the FBI Office in San Antonio gave the Irish Republican Army a "clean bill of health" nor was there any conversation of any "subversive" list.

In the event you have any additional questions, please do not hesitate to contact me or one of my representatives in San Antonio.

Sincerely yours,

E. M. Kelley

FROM: Mr. Heim
SUBJECT: J. F. C. Moore Letter to the Director

BACKGROUND:

By letter dated 6-22-74, to the Director, correspondent, Alamo Heights, Texas, advised he was greatly disturbed by a statement allegedly made by someone in the San Antonio Office giving a fund-raising drive for the Provisional Irish Republican Army (IRA) "a clean bill of health." He said this information was printed in the June 22nd edition of the "San Antonio Express-News." Moore stated that financial support of such a terrorist group should not be "promoted" by the FBI and he concluded his letter by stating he urged the Director to discuss this matter with the San Antonio Office and hoped that some clarification could be made. The Director noted on the incoming letter "Ack. K."

INFORMATION IN BUREAU FILES:

CURRENT DEVELOPMENTS:

Attached is a copy of the newspaper item referred to by correspondent which was received from the San Antonio Office.

ASAC Karl L. Stefansson, San Antonio Office, advised he had handled the telephone call from the "San Antonio Express-News," and the item as printed did not reflect what he said, nor did it convey the tenor of his conversation with the newspaper. ASAC Stefansson said that he in no way gave the IRA a "clean bill of health" nor did he make the statement that people soliciting support or donations for the IRA would not be placed on any "subversive" Enclosure list. He said in response to the newspaper's inquiry, if people were willing to contribute to the IRA, it was not illegal to his knowledge.

RECOMMENDATION:

That the attached letter be sent to correspondent, advising him that the information in the "San Antonio Express-News" did not accurately reflect information supplied by our San Antonio Office.
July 17, 1974

Mr. Clarence M. Kelley
Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D.C. 20535

Dear Mr. Kelley:

A copy of your July 3, 1974, letter to Mr. J.F.C. Moore of 5915 Broadway, Alamo Heights, Texas, has been forwarded to this column.

I take strong exception to your claims that the information published in Action/Express "did not accurately portray information supplied to them by our San Antonio Office."

I particularly object to the denial of any conversation about a subversive list. That was the last question asked of your agent in a four or five minute discussion. He denied there were any lists of subversives kept by the FBI.

So I rephrased the question and asked if the person would be under suspicion in any way for solicitation of funds. The answer was no.

There was also considerable discussion of the present status of IRA activities in the United States and mention made of a gun-running attempt through an East Coast port which was thwarted by law enforcement officials.

I was assured that even membership in the IRA (as opposed to mere sympathetic fund-raising) would not necessarily get a person entangled with the bureau unless the person engaged in some illegal activity.

Unfortunately, the IRA seems to be a much more controversial topic in Washington, D.C., than in San Antonio. Your agent here apparently found that out.

We took your agent's statements at face value. We did not intend to embarrass the bureau. Certainly, if we had printed the comment that the FBI keeps no lists of subversives, the bureau's credibility would have dropped several notches in the minds of many of our readers.
I am also very curious why, if the statements were as incorrect as your letter implies, you discussed this matter with someone outside the paper without first bringing it to our attention.

We have had a good working relationship with your local office and hope this incident in no way hampers the exchange of information in the future.

However, we will stand by the statements as printed.

Very truly yours,

DAVID SHultz

In view of the fact that the initial telephonic reply to the newspaper by your Office and the correspondence with Mr. Moore resulted in an apparent misunderstanding, you should personally contact Mr. Shute and acknowledge receipt of his letter of July 17, 1974. Mr. Shute should be advised the statement in the correspondence to Mr. Moore that the column "did not accurately portray information supplied to them by our San Antonio Office" referred specifically to the conclusion in the column that the FBI gave the IRA "a clean bill of health."

Mr. Shute should also be advised that there was obviously a misunderstanding concerning his question about solicitation of support and donations for the IRA, and this was further compounded by the correspondence with Mr. Moore. He should be informed that the full and accurate answer to that inquiry should have been that "solicitation of funds for the IRA was not a violation of any Federal law within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI provided that the solicitor registered and complied with provisions of the Foreign Agents Registration Act of 1938." as this statement was meant to be in reference only to discussions of individuals soliciting for the IRA. The statement was meant to relate directly and solely to the IRA, since the first portion of that sentence indicated that no one in the FBI Office in San Antonio gave the IRA "a clean bill of health."

You should also express the regrets of the Bureau that the personal contact with the newspaper did not occur prior to his receipt of Mr. Moore's letter. Mr. Shute should be informed it was the Bureau's intention to contact the newspaper promptly in order to clarify our position as it relates to his column. You should advise Mr. Shute that the FBI appreciates the good working relationship which has existed between his newspaper and your Office, and sincerely hopes that that relationship will continue. He should be assured that this incident will in no way hamper the exchange of information between his newspaper and the Bureau in the future, and that we value their continued assistance.

The scathingly anti-Nixon movie, "Millhouse: A White Comedy," was heavily financed by three nieces of Vice President-designate Nelson Rockefeller.

Rockefeller had nothing to do with his niece's generosity. His brother Laurance's daughter, Laura, ponied up $30,000. And two of David Rockefeller's daughters, Abby and Peggy, gave $5,000 and $2,000 respectively.

The film cost $200,000. So far, the Rockefeller women have gotten back $32,000 of their $37,000 investment.

Although abashed that we had learned of his Rockefeller financing, the producer of "Millhouse," Emile de Antonio, reluctantly confirmed that the nieces put up the money. He said he did not want an inference that the money came from the senior Rockefellers.

"As far as I know, it was a totally individual thing," de Antonio said.

His "Millhouse" told in factual, but stinging detail the story of Nixon's climb to power. It so infuriated the White House that the "plumbers" were sixed on de Antonio and an FBI check was run on him.

Memorandum

TO: Director, FBI (61-7606)
FROM: Chicago (105-34113) (P)
SUBJECT: IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY IS - IRELAND

Re my letter dated 10/9/74 and Headquarters letter dated 10/21/74.

Information developed by as made available to FBI Headquarters and Chicago, indicated that adherents of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) have been active in this area.

It would be reasonable to assume that the matter of arms exportation, which is within the primary jurisdiction of United States Customs, is not a singular or isolated effort of local IRA adherents, and that other activities preceded and will follow in any exportation.

It can be logically stated that IRA activity in the United States is indicative of an organization having definite foreign interests and connections. It would follow that those affiliated locally with IRA efforts are representative of subversive elements. The identification of these individuals and the determination of their targets and activities, including foreign elements prone to violence, fall clearly within our overall objective of protecting the internal security of the United States. On this basis Chicago believes that investigation of the above individuals is mandated.

Investigation, however, is being held in abeyance pending FBI Headquarters decision on this matter.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds Regularly on the Payroll Savings Plan
As indicated in referenced communications, subjects are allegedly involved in the illegal exportation of arms from the U.S. to Ireland on behalf of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), which allegation has been referred to U.S. Customs for appropriate investigation as they have primary investigative jurisdiction regarding the illegal exportation of arms. ReCglets recommended individual FBI investigation of these individuals based on the fact that if these individuals are connected with the IRA, it could logically be assumed that they are engaged in other activities, in addition to that above, on behalf of the IRA and investigation to identify these individuals to determine their targets and activities, including association with foreign elements prone to violence, is warranted under the FBI's responsibilities to protect the internal security of the U.S.

The Bureau concurs with Chicago that if these individuals are connected with the IRA it can logically be assumed that they are engaged in other activities of investigative interest to the FBI. Normally, we would initiate security-type or Registration Act investigations of the above individuals to identify them and to determine the nature of their activities; however, it has been the policy of the FBI that if an individual is already of investigative interest to another Federal agency, normally we do not initiate investigation so as not to interfere with that being conducted by the other agency. It is felt that the investigation being conducted by U. S. Customs is of a more serious nature involving possible prosecution of these individuals than a security-type investigation which would be conducted by the FBI.
Letter to Chicago
Re: Irish Republican Army

If after evaluation of this matter you feel separate investigation by the FBI is not warranted, it is suggested that you maintain close contact with U. S. Customs regarding this matter for any information developed pertaining to matters of interest to the FBI. When these individuals are no longer of investigative interest to Customs, advise the Bureau and submit appropriate recommendations if you feel further investigation by the FBI at that time is warranted.

If you feel facts developed to date are so aggravated that simultaneously separate investigation by the FBI is warranted, discuss this matter with the local office of U. S. Customs to determine whether they interpose any objection to our investigation of subjects. Advise Bureau of results and contemplated investigation by your office.

SINCE LEGAT TELEPHONE CALL TO BUREAU 11/26/74 ADVISING PASSAGE OF EMERGENCY BILL TO CURB IRA ACTIVITY IN ENGLAND EXPECTED ON 11/28/74, SITUATION IN PARLIAMENT, LONDON, HAS CHANGED SOMEWHAT, HENCE THE FOLLOWING SUMMARY IS SET FORTH:

ON MONDAY, 11/25/74, HOME SECRETARY ROY JENKINS INTRODUCED EMERGENCY BILLS IN THE HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT TO CURB IRA ACTIVITY. THIS IS A RESULT OF RECENT IRA BOMBINGS RESULTING IN NUMEROUS DEATHS. IN BRIEF, THE BILL OUTLAWS THE IRA AND MEMBERS AND SUPPORTERS OF THE IRA ARE LIABLE TO FIVE YEARS IMPRISONMENT AND UNLIMITED FINE. IT ALSO CONTAINS MEASURES TO IMPRISON AND FINE ANYONE WEARING UNIFORM STYLE CLOTHING, SUCH AS ADOPTED BY PROVISIONAL IRA.

JENKINS HIMSELF STATED THAT HE REALIZED THESE MEASURES WERE UNPRECEDENTED IN PEACE TIME AND WOULD BE AN INFRINGEMENT OF CIVIL RIGHTS.
LIBERTIES, BUT SUCH MEASURES WERE NECESSARY TO CURB TERRORIST ACTIVITIES.

IN ESSENCE, THE BILL WILL GIVE POLICE WIDER POWERS TO SEARCH, SEIZE AND DETAIN PERSONS FOR QUESTIONING SUSPECTED OF IRA ACTIVITY. IT WILL ALSO GIVE POLICE AT PORTS OF ENTRY INTO THE UNITED KINGDOM WIDER POWERS IN QUESTIONING AND DETAINING FOR INVESTIGATION PERSONS ENTERING THE UNITED KINGDOM WHO MAY BE SUSPECTED OF IRA SUPPORT. THE BILL IS SUBJECT TO RENEWAL AFTER SIX MONTHS.

ORIGINALLY THE BILL WAS EXPECTED TO BECOME LAW 11/28/74, BUT THERE IS NOW STRONG FEELING BY MANY MP'S THAT THE BILL IS NOT STRONG ENOUGH AND THAT THE DEATH PENALTY SHOULD BE REIMPOSED FOR TERRORIST ACTS. IF THE DEATH PENALTY CLAUSE OF THE BILL GOES TO DEBATE, THE BILL UNDOUBTEDLY WILL BE DELAYED.

A COPY OF THE BILL AND DEBATE IN THE PARLIAMENT WILL BE OBTAINED AND FURNISHED THE BUREAU.

IN ADDITION TO THE ABOVE, POLICE ALREADY HAVE POWERS TO SEARCH AND SEIZE EXPLOSIVES WITHOUT WARRANT UNDER THE EXPLOSIVES SUBSTANCE ACT OF 1883, AND A COPY OF THIS ACT HAS BEEN FURNISHED TO ASSISTANT TO THE DIRECTOR-DEPUTY ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR JAMES B. ADAMS FOLLOWING HIS RECENT VISIT TO LONDON.

END
Attached from Legat, London, reports that as a result of recent Irish Republican Army (IRA) bombings in England resulting in numerous deaths, on 11/25/74 Home Secretary Roy Jenkins introduced an emergency bill in the House of Parliament to curb IRA activities.

In brief, bill outlaws IRA and members; supporters of IRA are liable to five years imprisonment and unlimited fines; and contains measures to imprison and fine anyone wearing uniform-type clothing such as adopted by Provisional IRA.

Bill will give police wider powers to search, seize and detain for questioning persons suspected of IRA activity as well as wider powers in questioning and detaining for investigation persons entering the United Kingdom and suspected of IRA support.

Bill was expected to become law 11/28/74 but many MP's feel bill is not strong enough and death penalty should be re-imposed for terrorist acts; if death penalty clause of bill goes to debate, bill will undoubtedly be delayed.

Legat, London, obtaining a copy of bill and debate and upon receipt you will be advised of pertinent details.
RELONCAB 11/27/74.

IT IS EXPECTED THE ANTI-TERRORIST BILL WILL BECOME LAW TODAY, ESSENTIALLY IN THE FORM AS OUTLINED IN REFERENCED CABLE.

WITHIN THE NEXT TWO WEEKS PARLIAMENT INTENDS TO HAVE A "FREE" VOTE CONCERNING THE RESUMPTION OF THE DEATH PENALTY FOR IRA TERRORIST ACTIVITIES. THIS "FREE" VOTE MEANS THAT EACH MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT CAN VOTE AS HE SO DESIRES WITHOUT ANY POLITICAL PARTY INFLUENCE.

DETAILS OF THE BILL AND RELATIVE DEBATE WILL BE FURNISHED THE BUREAU AS SOON AS RECEIVED.

THE REASON THE "FREE" VOTE ON THE DEATH PENALTY ASPECT OF THE BILL WAS PUT OFF FOR APPROXIMATELY TWO WEEKS WAS TO NOT DELAY THE PASSAGE OF THE BILL ITSELF BY EXTENSIVE DEBATE.  DEC-67 01-7606-70

Memorandum

TO: Mr. W. R. Wannall
FROM: F. S. Putman, Jr.

DATE: 12/16/74

SUBJECT: IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY (IRA) INTERNAL SECURITY - IRELAND

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED

You were previously advised by informative note on 11/27/74 of the proposed anti-terrorist bill introduced in the British House of Parliament on 11/25/74 to curb IRA sponsored terrorist activities. It was also indicated at that time that many members of Parliament felt the bill was not strong enough and the death penalty should be reimposed for terrorist acts; however, it was felt that if the death penalty clause of the bill went to debate, the bill would undoubtedly be delayed.

In order to facilitate speedy passage, the Government agreed to a Conservative demand for debate, possibly within two weeks on restoration of capital punishment for terrorist acts. The bill received Royal assent on 11/29/74 and passed before Parliament without amendment. A copy of this bill is attached for your information.

In summary, the bill outlawed the IRA and its members. Supporters of the IRA will be liable to five years in prison and unlimited fine. It also contains measures to imprison and fine anyone wearing uniform style clothing such as adopted by the Provisional IRA.

The bill gives police authorities wider powers to search, seize and detain persons for questioning who are suspected of IRA activity. It additionally gives police authorities at ports of entry into the United Kingdom (UK) wider powers in questioning, detaining, as well as deporting persons entering the UK who may be suspected of IRA support.

For your additional information, on 12/16/74, the State Department made available information indicating the Government of Ireland (GOI) on 12/5/74 introduced a "Criminal Law (Jurisdiction) Bill" in Dail, the main feature of which...

Enclosure

Memorandum F. S. Putman, Jr., to Mr. W. R. Wannall
Re: Irish Republican Army (IRA)

is the provision for prosecution in the Republic of Ireland of terrorist-type offenses committed in Northern Ireland. This is a substitute for an extradition bill as the GOI apparently believe that extradition is politically unacceptable. The bill applies to a number of terrorist-type offenses in Northern Ireland, i.e., murder, kidnapping, hijacking, etc., and contains provisions for heavy penalties for relatively minor crimes and wider powers for search and arrest.

The bill also applies anywhere in the world for prosecution in the Republic of those charged with conspiracy to cause an explosion and related offenses. Persons who assist fugitives engaged in these offenses will be subject to prosecution for the same crime as the fugitive himself. The bill is expected to pass after strenuous debate; however, cannot be implemented until corresponding measure is passed by Parliament, where similar bill has not yet been introduced. If after the law is in effect, it is felt that it will probably not be used very often.

ACTION:

None. For information. Efforts will be made to obtain a copy of the bill introduced in the Republic, a copy of which will be made available to you upon receipt.

(3) If a constable has arrested a person under section 1 of this Act he may also, for the purpose of ascertaining whether he has in his possession any document or other article which may constitute evidence that he is a person liable to arrest, search any other than his person, and take the steps necessary for arresting the person.
Evidence in proceedings: 8.—(1) Any document purporting to be an order, notice or direction made or given by the Secretary of State for the purposes of any provision contained in or made under this Act and to be signed by him or on his behalf shall be received in evidence, and shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be made or given by him.

(2) Prima facie evidence of any such order, notice or direction may, in any legal proceedings, be given by the production of a document bearing a certificate purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Secretary of State and stating that the document is a true copy of the order, notice or direction; and the certificate shall be received in evidence, and shall, until the contrary is proved, be deemed to be made or issued by the Secretary of State.

Application to Northern Ireland: 9.—(1) This Part of this Schedule shall extend to Northern Ireland so far as it relates to an offence under section 3 of this Act in respect of an exclusion order which prohibits a person from being in, or entering, the United Kingdom (and not only Great Britain).

(2) The Secretary of State may by order contained in a statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament make such adaptations of this Part of this Schedule as appear to him expedient for the purpose of its application to Northern Ireland in accordance with this paragraph.

In addition, it should be noted that the Parliament debated and voted on the question of whether or not the death penalty should be re instituted for terrorist activity. This.
was a "free vote" in the Parliament and each member could, therefore, follow the dictates of his own conscience rather than be tied to party policy. The vote resulted in a 152 majority for no death penalty, although press announced that public opinion polls indicate approximately 75% of the British people did favor the return of the death penalty for acts of terrorism.

"The Police are our main protection against terrorism"
Mr Roy Jenkins, Home Secretary, moving the second reading of the Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Bill, said the Government, in common with their predecessors, had given the highest priority to measures to combat and overcome terrorism.
"The Police are our main protection against terrorism," he said, "and it is to the Police that we must give our assistance and support. It cannot be without reluctance that we contemplate powers of the kind that I propose in this Bill, involving as they must some encroachments, limited but real, on the liberties of individual citizens."
Sir Keith Joseph, Opposition spokesman on home affairs, said that the Government must appreciate that the Bill, and what was involved in it, was bound to impose a considerable extra burden on Police manpower. If the Bill was to be made effective, the Police should not have to draw strength from elsewhere at a time when crime was rising in order to carry out the obligations imposed on them by this legislation.

The Home Secretary was rightly thorough about the sort of the protection power. He was limiting his use of it to terrorist bodies whose purpose was not to be made illegal. He should consider whether it might not be better to make illegal in the age of terrorism to allow bodies, unconnected with Northern Ireland, to do undercover trying to make changes in the northern state. Northern Ireland, ought to contribute to that to the national state.

If that was so, the powers of the Bill were sharply limited. Mr. de Crespigny said that he disliked the Bill very much but was not supported by the Unionist states, the police and the entire rate of the state must be mobilised to root out the terrorists. He said he was not satisfied with the strength of the Bill, and much more could be done to recruit suitable people to reinforce the Special Branch, he thought.

Mr. Kees-Overli said that if the Government was going to make a case for terrorism for those whom had been guilty of fierce crimes in Birmingham and who had been found guilty could be executed. Sir Michael Havers said he thought that the use of the 1351 Treason Act would be inappropriate. It was over 600 years old and with increasingly young jury members that Act, and its language, were too difficult.

He doubted if it would be right for judges to convict for offences under an Act designed to cover entirely different circumstances because it provided a penalty was available under other Acts. If the Home Office wished to provide the death penalty for acts of terrorism, there was a case that this was now a new statute or by amending the existing Treason Act.
POWERS OF CRIMINAL COURTS ACT 1973 (3)

Powers relating to persistent offenders

Sections 28 and 29 replace the provisions relating to persistent offenders in the Criminal Justice Act 1967 as to the punishment of persistent offenders.

Praesent offence

Section 30 makes an offence an offender over 21 years of age who is convicted on indictment of an offence of more than 5 years' imprisonment for a term of two years or more in relation to or connected with the previous conviction; or

The suggestion that Special Branch was directly or indirectly responsible on the latter point, is, in my view, completely without foundation. The examinations of incidents surrounding the individual incidents to which the accused was connected with respect to the suspicions cast its answer to the suggestion was that he operated as an agent provocateur and concealed at least Special Branch officers.

It hardly needs to be said that having had the good fortune to escape the service of an informant who was accepted to Republican extremists circle, Special Branch officers were prepared to go to considerable lengths to ensure his protection. It is the normal practice for Special Branch in its dealings with informants to use a cover in the manner which the notice from the centre that circumstances developing which would lead to personal physical danger, saw would be taken to safeguard him. As far as Lennon's account of the off-ence was unimpeachable. Whilst it must be admitted that Lennon's account to the N.C.C.L. of the various incidents connected with the latter part of his career that he acted as such, he has also said in the past that he is not an agent provocateur or a passable, and that he was left in his position.

Statement to N.C.C.L.: Don't phone the police, I've no intention of doing anything. Frightened of going to Latvia — North Korea or something.

The N.C.C.L. account alleged that Special Branch officers

1. Had visited Lennon in Junean before to become an informant by the threat of bringing criminal proceedings against him for his part in the Northern Ireland Civil Rights disturbance at Newry in 1969, and his efforts for his political involvement.

2. Had thereby forced him to become an agent provocateur.

3. Having recruited Lennon, failed to make provision for his safety.

4. Were directly responsible for his death, or their actions had indirectly contributed to it.

5. Having included the act as an informer, he was no doubt, conspired with other Police officers in order to escape the consequences to his activities.

As the result of the public interest which has been shown from the Home Secretary discredited the case with the full co-operation of the Police, the N.C.C.L. of the Police, the Assistant Commissioner in charge of Special Branch, on 17th July 1974, it was stated that he would welcome an opportunity from the Postmaster General to the N.C.C.L. and other Police officers concerned with the case, to hear the full story and to deal with the actions of Special Branch and other Police officers concerned with the case and would be willing to act as a matter of urgency.

The report of the West Midlands Police Force (which now includes the Special Branch Police Force) and Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire Constabulary (now Bedfordshire Police) was laid before the Commons October 1974, and it is too early to embrace not only matters affecting the Special Branch service, but to deal with the actions of their officers. Mr. Starratt examined each of these allegations, an inquiry of which there was no evidence to substantiate them. In particular :

1. The allegation that pressure was brought to bear on Lennon to become an informant. He himself initiated the association solely for monetary gain, but afterwards became involved in an event of prosecution for an offence he had committed in Northern Ireland, and afterwards he had been furnished with information that Special Branch were aware of his sister's political involvement. Special Branch had no knowledge of these matters until after his death.

2. That he acted as an agent provocateur in a similar manner. Whilst it must be admitted that Lennon's account to the N.C.C.L. of the various incidents connected with his role as such, he has also said in the past that he is not an agent provocateur or a passable, and that he was left in his position.

Greed makes them try.
Chubb makes them fail.

During 1973, this is what happened when Chubb equipment detected an intruder and gave the alarm.

• Persons arrested by police on customers' premises following the activation of the alarm
  779
• Number of captures
  440
• Number of incidents, not leading directly to arrest but almost all of which resulted in abandonment of criminal purpose
  1,923

In total 2,353 "crimes that did not pay" thanks to Chubb Alarms. These activations, audible or silent or a pre-arranged combination, range across the whole variety of systems that Chubb Alarms can provide, usually in consultation with the requirements of Police and Insurance authorities.

MISCELLANEOUS POWERS

Powers of Crown Court on Criminal Appeal

Section 42 (replacing Section 29 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967) provides that, where an appeal from a conviction by a magistrates' court for sentence under Section 29 of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1953, or Section 52 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967, the Crown Court, after inquiring into the circumstances of the case has power to deal with the offender in any manner in which it could deal with him if he had just been convicted of the offence on which the appeal is made to the Court.

Power to deprive offender of property used, or intended for use, for purposes of crime

Section 43 (amending Section 23 of the Criminal Justice Act 1972) enables a court where a person is convicted of an offence punishable on indictment with not less than two years' imprisonment to order the forfeiture of any property used by him for the purposes of the offence, or to order the sale of any property so forfeited and to make the proceeds of such sale available to the Secretary of State for the Environment and Section 105(3) of that Act (prosecution of offenders). The power to deprive offender of property used, or intended for use, for purposes of crime is an important additional tool in the fight against crime.

Social inquiry and probation officers' reports

Section 44 (derived from Section 37 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967) allows the Secretary of State to make rules requiring a court, before passing a sentence to which the rules apply (which include imprisonment or some other form of detention), to consider a social inquiry report about the offender and his circumstances. Further, Section 46 (derived from Section 43 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967) provides that a report of a probation officer is made to any court, other than a juvenile court, with a view to assisting the court in determining the most suitable method of dealing with the offender, a copy of the report is to be given to the court to the offender or his counsel or solicitor. In the case of an offender under 17 years of age who is not legally represented, a copy of the report must not be given to him but to his parent or guardian if present in court.

PART II: ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

Rehabilitation of offenders and arrangements for persons on bail

 Provision is made in this part of the Act for the probation and after-care service and its functions (Section 47); the power of the Secretary of State to regulate community service work and training at day training centres (Section 48); the power of the Secretary of State to approve bail hostels and probation hostels and homes (Section 49); inspection of approved bail hostels and of probation hostels and of persons approved for residence in probation hostels (Section 50); and for expenses and grants payable out of money provided by Parliament (Section 51).

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

 Evidence with respect to offences punishable by fine or imprisonment (Section 52), replacing the provisions of Section 39 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967, provides that for the purposes of this Act a certificate purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the Lord Advocate that an offence is punishable in Scotland with imprisonment, or is punishable in Scotland on indictment with imprisonment for a term specified in the certificate is conclusive evidence of the matter so certified.

Execution of process between England and Wales and between England and Scotland (Section 53), replacing the provisions of Sections 4 and 5 of the Summons, Jurisdiction and Writs Act 1966 (execution of process of English courts

POLICE REVIEW 6 December 1974

CONSTANCE ON THE TRACK

Finding the cause

POLICE ATTENDING A RAIL crash must always be alive to the possibility that it may have resulted from a criminal act. The cause may be quite clear and the need for immediate steps to trace the offenders obvious. If for example the train ran into a stone on the line, the officers know that they have a crime on their hands even if it may turn out that the oldest of the perpetrators is only ten years and 6 months old. In other cases the facts will be less clear and the Police will need to work closely with the railway operating and engineering specialists. These officials will always be quick to let the Police know if they have any suspicions that a crime has been committed or if they are unable to rule it out by establishing the cause.

Following an accident to a train the following inquiries may be held: (1) A very searching private "departmental inquiry" carried out by senior rail officials. (2) The Secretary of State for the Environment may order a highly qualified member of his Railway Inspectorate to conduct a public inquiry into any accident to a train on a passenger railway or any accident involving death or injury. Unlike the departmental inquiry, this has a statutory foundation - the Regulation of Railways Act 1871. The report, which may include preventive recommendations, is made public and usually testifies to the thoroughness of the search for truth. (3) Finally, in England and Wales a coroner's inquest follows if there is a fatality. A member of the Inspectorate may be appointed associate coroners, with technical matters. This was done following the 112-death crash at Harringay and Westdene in 1974. Similar arrangements may be made in Scotland to assist the local procurator fiscal's inquiry. (Of course all the fiscal schemes are like the hero of a popular TV series, this technical assistance would be quite superfluous.)

The private departmental inquiry usually takes place within a day or two and its report will give the investigating officer a valuable starting point. The D. of E. inquiry is not usually held until after Police investigations are complete but, if these are protracted, the Inspector may begin a later adjournment to enable the British Transport Police to make further inquiries. This was done in the case of the Conington crash some years ago and resulted in a member of this Force obtaining a warrant to arrest an ex-signaller for manslaughter. This was possible, incidentally, only after British Rail experts had eliminated all other possibilities by a series of tests including a simulation of the incidents on a similar length of track.

The proportion of accidents attributable to rail staff faults continues to decrease. It is a sobering thought however that the number of those resulting from "human error" is inevitably irresponsibility of members of the public near the track.

Powers of Criminal Courts Act 1973

From page 1557 in Scotland and vice versa applies to any process issued under Part I of this Act or under Section 5 of the Criminal Justice (Scotland) Act 1949 as it applies to process issued under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1953 by a magistrate's court. This provision replaces that in Section 11(3) of the Criminal Justice Act 1948, Section 428 of the Criminal Justice Act 1967, and Section 51(3) of the Criminal Justice Act 1972.

Miscellaneous

Of the remaining sections of the Act, Section 54 gives the Secretary of State power to make rules and orders; Section 55 relates to Schedule 4 which provides transitional provisions under the Act; Section 56 refers to the amendments to various previous Acts which are outlined in Schedule 3 and the repeal of Acts or parts of Acts detailed in Schedule 6; Section 57 gives an extensive interpretative section; and Sections 58 and 59 indicate the parts of the Act which are extended to Scotland and Northern Ireland (already mentioned in this summary).
More notes on practical duty

Watch for thieves
By David Powis, Deputy Assistant Commissioner, Metropolitan Police

One of the strongest growth industries in Britain today is fraud, and so the force of this form of crime is the "long line method," or "L.F." as they slang it nowadays. These are the conmen who fraudsters manufacture or wholesalers to supply large quantities of goods on credit, with the intention that the account will never be paid. Counterfeit credit worthiness is built up by false references from other fraudulent associates, and by ordering smaller quantities of goods in the early stages from reputable concerns, and settling these accounts promptly. Suspicious-looking concerns are then used as references, but these are themselves duped when a large order follows promptly after the settled account, with no intention of payment for these subsequent orders. The goods are then rapidly sold by the fraudulent "own-name" prit, the means of distribution.

The type of goods involved can run through the whole spectrum of supply, including confectionary, general foodstuffs, medicinal wares, both high and low, silk goods, electrical goods, blankets, woolens, clothing, clocks, toiletries etc. etc., and it is generally similar with goods from just about all these sources will be the sort in popular public demand at the time in question, and suitable for quick disposal either in cut-rate shops or street markets. As time passes, this industry can be regarded as where the fraudsters have themselves obtained control of a number of reliable outlets, where the fraudster is not afraid to use it ruthless both to obtain and to dispose of goods, as the goods have not been previously handled legitimately, and it becomes more difficult for the police to prove that the goods are correctly supplied. The losses can be very widespread, and cause losses to honest firms of hundreds of thousands of pounds. They can be at large, and have been in the past severely affected our country's trade reputation.

In this connection, as good as these are the specialised deterrent matters and of no practical interest to ordinary Policemen patrolling, in motor cars and on foot, the subject is an important one, as the use of fraud is widespread and the conmen are at some of the stages of this crime and are invariably used to transport goods to certain sorts of premises, in fact vehicles which are used for this purpose. The crime is "fraud in action" stuff, you say, and so-in the latter stages-it certainly is, but at all other times of the crime this is often the case. The conmen are thereby vulnerable to shrewd and wideawake street Policemen, but in a different way from the direct street arrest, as I hope to show you.

If all other methods of trade or function, should be worldly wise and have a practical and even materialistic understanding of criminal behaviour. So, with a view to future reference and to bolster the public; Watch for:

* Activity at the premises of job lot buyers. On the face of it these traders are in the market to buy up stockbook scrap and horse hair, but other traders were said to be raiding. They are fraud here dare not be, but are used by occasion. For example, there are always plenty of job lot men, but experience shows they are frequently a popular outlet for long firm fraudmen's goods. If you have job lot buyers' premises, don't allow them to have parked last time as "back up" for your oral evidence in the witness box.

If you see premises you suspect may be L.F. outlets, remember circulars and newspaper advertisements. An eventual prosecution is to link the "front man" with the principal in the background. The "front" marks cars and vans seen at the premises, and particularly the frequency they are seen there, can be of great assistance later. Not that these are a sure fire way but if a case, these index marks can help to trace the quasi- respectable buyers with a view to proving at subsequent prosecution the purchase of goods will cost less price. Since the virtual end of retail price maintenance, selling below list price in the absence of a location, a case of "something wrong" as perhaps it once was, but if the majority of such cars, it is suspected that the car sold by reasonably similar traders in the same area, it may still be a good pointer.

The sort of premises it might be suspicious—you must use both your own local knowledge and that of your respectable commercial contacts. Many of the presently unsuccessful shop premises, every area has them, those that have seen many changes of occupant, and which suddenly blossom into intense activity. Perhaps a senior detective colleague can find out discreetly if the shop

A new course in physical training
"You are the first officers to have successfully completed this new course. The Service has needed something like this for years and I am delighted that this course was chosen for the purpose."

These remarks followed the presentation of awards and certificates to Mr. G. W. R. Terry, Chief Constable of Scarborough and the chairman of the Chief Constables Committee for Sandgate and Ashford Police Training Centres, to the nine officers who had just competed the first of a series of courses in physical training at Grovernum Hall P.T.C., Horncastle.

Earlier, Chief Supt. E. A. Walker, staff officer (Training), H.M. Inspectorate of Constabulary, had explained how the course had come about. With Mr. J. W. Houghton, secretary of the British Association for Physical Training, and Mr. Martin Spencer (City of London), a fellow of the B.A.P.T. and the course teacher, he had organised the first course — which sought to qualify existing and potential P.T.C. staff to give Home Office Police training centres as well as some members of Force and Cadet training departments. The four-week course covered the theory and practice of physical training — including most aspects of gymnastics, track and field athletics, sports and games, and circuit training. The B.A.P.T. had lectured on anatomy, physiology, and hygiene and had conducted an examination in the practical and theoretical work of the P.T.C. All the candidates had passed these examinations and had been awarded the leadership certificate of the B.A.P.T., admitting them to membership and further grading in due course. In addition the nine officers had gained A.S.A. speaking to suspect drivers in their vehicles. Either has an unmistakable smell; this is used in the manufacture of LSD and the odour can permeate clothing for a long time. A pipe- line sniffer, yet similar to benzene soap, may indicate the presence in the car of cannabis.

Any unusual chemical odour emanating from a vehicle should be investigated. There is a marked variant between the odour on the breath of a driver who has had beer, and one who has drunk spirits. It is important, as no matter what his external conduct is like, the man smelling of spirit is most likely the more intoxicated. Large men, over say 15 stone, can quite easily but externally appear only mildly "merry". In such a case the latter odour can be valuable consideration for you in deciding what to do.

The pressurised cans that spew deodorant or "air freshener" have themselves a slight but distinctive odour, slightly differing from brand to brand. Over the years pressure can sprays in a vehicle, otherwise dirty and untidy, can be very suspicious. Are the occupants trying to mask the smell of cannabis or the pungent chemical smell? Bear this in mind on those motorway stops and good luck.

may, through extreme political views, intend harm to the community. It is known to them to protect. While there are subtle differences between these types of extremists and thieves it is difficult to predict with any material distinction, but they both in some way have a motivation or dedication, whatever their appearance, markedly dissimilar to the conceptions of the usually greedy and disinterested thief. You see, they consider themselves soldiers, rather than "smart operators" who think of the world as their own. This will show in their ordinary conversation, where almost unconsciously they will use the jargon and phrases of their beliefs. They are a little naive in criminal matters and are therefore (as Special Patrol Group experience has shown) more likely to make mistakes when making up false facts, or using counterfeit licences, both of which will be quickly obvious to a keen Police eye.

Another truth in mind and use your nose—yes your nose—as well as your eyes and ears, when faced with the criminal scene. Remember, only for 40 years now have we known what an expertly trained嗅觉 has to offer, and already the police are reaping the advantages.

That's the news for the moment from A.C. I hope to meet you all again soon.
Social mobility and stress affecting Police officers

by Peter Dawson

Mr. Dawson, a psychologist, was educated at the University of Leeds and has done research in mental deficiency at the University of St. Andrews. His latest book is a study in the Department of Social Science at Middlesex University and is an associate of the Royal Institute of Public Health and Hygiene and a member of the Newspaper Association. His article was in response to a request by Chief Supt. T. H. Hayton (P.R., 4262).

Before the war and for some time afterwards people were easily classified in terms of social class. Now it is not easy. During the last few years there has been a great increase in social mobility and this may be very desirable in a society of so many problems.

I would like to mention these problems in relation to the man on the beat, who is the basic unit in the Police Service.

Take as an example of what a Police officer faces, quite an extreme example of social mobility: the village idiot. In years past he sat outside the pub and was not molested as long as he remained quiet. Nothing much was expected from him and he was not expected to return from society.

Today the social services have supposedly taken him under their wing and have attempted to give him a better existence. The Police have to deal with him in this society. I am not sure if his rights, given more money, would ever be any better, but instead of being pleasantly merry his new-found ability means he can sing and dance without being paid for his efforts. This helps disguise the fact that this person with the off-the-cuff "indigent personality" is in all probability a high-grade menace to society and a dangerous psychopathic individual.

The Police officer has an even more acute problem in that he not only has to deal with the village idiot, he is also more likely to deal with the mental patient. The Police officer is not only a policeman, he is a psychiatrist.

So his behaviour causes complaints: the Police officer asks him to move or he is shouted at; the person becomes physically aggressive to the officer or the dog. The Police officer has to deal with these situations in a complaint against the Police and an investigation, while the end result is increased social mobility in both directions.

No more public mischief

For 40 years the "public mischief" charge has been a stock phrase in police practice and arguments which begin "Yes, but what have you got for a charge other than a charge of public mischief?" answer, "We know what they did, but we can't name it." The House of Lords has lately come round to the view that it is a nasty and popular charge and has abolished it. It has now been replaced by the charge of Public Nuisance.

The Police, Mr. Rolph points out, has always been in the position of having to deal with offenders while they are involved in their crime, as opposed to the finish beforehand as a criminal. This is now changing.

The Police, Mr. Rolph points out, is now in a position of dealing with the simple nuisance, but not in the same way as the old public mischief charge.

Among the first points to be considered is the public nuisance charge. The old charge has been abolished and in its place has come the new charge of Public Nuisance. The charge is that a person has caused a nuisance to the public.

The Police officer has to prove that the nuisance was caused by the person in question and that it was a nuisance to the public. The charge is that the person has caused a nuisance to the public.

We're proud to assure the cars of the majority of policemen.

Your colleagues chose United Empire for accuracy and value in a far different forty years' experience. Today we're financially backed by the giant ITT Group to underwrite our stability.

And we offer exceptionally good terms to policemen. That's because they're responsible professionals and our experience proves them a particularly good insurance proposition.

Hypocritical

Sir, The subject of the Special Constabulary is one that has been recently mentioned in your columns, and I have been sent the following remarks by Mr. M. M. Male, the Police Federation chairman (P.P., no. 4258), as follows:

"I was "ashamed" to see some straight talking on this subject. The police and our special officers should come to the rescue of the Specials. One of the main Federation objections to the Special Constabulary appears to be the fact that they are unpaid volunteers and thus they are not equipped for doing the work. Is the Federation against voluntary community work? It would appear to be.

The Police Service has no laurels to rest on when one reads what the Federation has to say about this subject. The police have one of the largest voluntary labour groups in the whole community. How many policemen are involved with clubs and youth clubs, in the work of the Red Cross, the St. John Ambulance Brigade, and other such organisations? Does their presence affect members of those organisations who are paid for their work? Does it affect recruiting? Does the Police Federation get paid to send out recruiting officers to do outside voluntary work?

I read Mr. M. M. Males' remarks with interest and believe in carrying our social work. Can the Federation justify this position? In my view the Federation is being hypocritical on this subject.

Training Schools is in for comment. "They should be employed only on duties related to their training." What on earth does Mr. M. M. Male mean? Training goes on all the time! Even before the police have taken up their posts they are engaged on the job in the company of an experienced officer. The only way for a Special to become good enough for the job is to ensure that continuous practical training is done.

I would be the first to agree that the Special Constabulary needs reviving, but can one consider the situation in which it is needed for emergency work only. In the present political and social climate the Police officers are those who have contributed in great numbers to make help available at all the time. He should not throw away the ideal of the face of those willing to give help.

The Special Constabulary needs a new rank structure and the present system in the T.A. AVR might be worth a closer look.

When the Police Advisory Council starts its inquiry I hope it will take note of what members of the Special Constabulary have to say and does not learn to its mistake by letting only to regular officers.

Serg. R. G. Smith should not blame the Specials for the ill that befalls the Police Service. It is about time the anomaly between the two forces was brought to the attention of the public, and the way to this is about inviting a Special to present his case at the next Federation conference.

KEN ORME (Special Sergeant, Mersey Police).

Whipping boys

Sir, From the remarks made at the Police Federation conference by Serg. R. G. Smith, the Special Constabulary is nothing more than the "whipping boys" in the Federation's efforts to improve regular Police wages and conditions.

While we concede that we cannot match the expertise of the professionals we are more than willing to learn and improve our performance by working alongside them. It must surely be obvious to Federation delegates that it is the unusual hours that make recruiting difficult and not the fact that Specials are used to augment an already dangerously stretched Police Force.

I have often heard the remark about "our union would soon offer our services free" but those who say this are in a minority.

On the whole our services are accepted in the spirit in which they are given.

May I remind Federation delegates that the previous legislation did not blame their low wages on the Red Cross or the St. John Ambulance Brigade or anyone else who helps in hospital work (regis Coyle). They blamed the politicians and indeed John G. EAST (Special Constable, Essex).

More Police powers needed

Sir, There is not something wrong with the field of operations in which a policeman works. According to recent press reports, Ronald Barnes of the Merseyside Police detained Miss Judith Ward for something he could not decide upon. As turned out Miss Ward was subsequently charged with the M26 coach explosion and it was Barnett who commended the trial judge. How different the situation might have been had Miss Ward not been subsequently charged but instead had brought civil proceedings against the constable for unlawful arrest. If the later circumstance had happened we have no doubt that Christine v. Leachbery would have been quoted, together with other cases of unlawful arrest in uncertain circumstances have taken place.

In right that Police officers should be exposed to these areas of uncertainty and that this cannot be provided unless the necessary and sufficient powers to enable them to carry out their duties without being unduly handicapped. The Federation, therefore, should be pressing the Home Secretary for the introduction of a Bill to give the police the powers they require to do their job properly.

System criticised

Sir, Mr. G. E. Johnson (Letter, P.P., no. 4509) has missed the point made by Mr. J. O'Donnell in his letter.

Firstly, a pension claim should have been established by the police officer and no claim should follow or have been allowed to go by second-class post and, secondly, it is not the police officer but the pensioner who contributed to the sustenance of the system which allows this to happen.

The financial state of the pensioner is more likely to be the result of the member's poor administration of his pension while he was serving and is nothing to do with the system itself as defined by the police union.

Mr. Johnson should be thankfull that his letter has been given attention.

Mr. J. O'DONNELL

Violence to children

Sir, Congratulations on your programme. I agree that the Public Service is one of the best institutions in the world. If the public can use its power any more it is not being used to advantage.

In having to lose and public are always in the wrong. In my view such mistakes are inevitable, and the police must be held responsible for the consequences of their errors.

We must learn to accept the responsibility of our mistakes and not to blame others for them.

Our society is not perfect, but it is the best we have and we must work to improve it.

What is needed is a better understanding of the police system and a greater appreciation of the work they do.

The Prevention of Terrorism (Temporary Provisions) Act 1974

Part I — Proscribed organisations

Section 1 and Schedule 1 prescribe the I.R.A. in Great Britain. This provision is modelled on Section 19 of the Northern Ireland (Emergency Provisions) Act 1973. It will be an offence to belong or profess to belong to the I.R.A., to seek support for the I.R.A., or to give or receive contributions to the I.R.A. The I.R.A. meetings, these offences cover making collections for the I.R.A. and providing weapons and other resources.

Part II — Exclusion orders

Part II of the Act enables the Secretary of State to make exclusion orders in respect of some persons whom he considers to be suspected of an offence under this provision. The exclusion order prohibits a person against whom it is made from going into or being within Great Britain.

Subsection 1 exempts United Kingdom citizens resident in Great Britain and who have been resident for the previous 20 years (or for the whole of their lives). The cases of proving exemption rests with the person claiming it.

Subsection 2 requires the Secretary of State to take account of whether a person is likely to lead a life in Great Britain which will make it impossible for him to go into or be within Great Britain if an exclusion order were made against him. A United Kingdom citizen could be entitled to an exclusion order to be made against him if he had a connection with the Eire and was a member of an organisation involved in terrorism in the Republic of Ireland.

Subsection 3 makes it an offence not to comply with an exclusion order. This provides a sanction for any person against whom an exclusion order is made and who fails to observe it. It also provides a power of arrest and detention for a person against whom an exclusion order is made.

Part III — Provisions for conviction of offences

This Part provides for conviction of offences committed in Great Britain or in any other place or persons outside Great Britain. It provides for conviction of offences committed by a person outside Great Britain, against whom an exclusion order has been made.

Subsection 1 provides that, when an exclusion order is made against a person, notice shall be served on that person in the manner prescribed by the regulations to be made by the Secretary of State.

Subsection 2 provides that in the enactment of the proceedings subsection under this legislation in a security person convicted under these provisions. Section 3 provides that an offence to be committed in the High Court for conviction of offences committed by a person outside Great Britain. This would include the trial of the proceedings against the person convicted in Great Britain.

Subsection 3 provides that there is no obligation to take any steps to serve persons outside Great Britain. This would include the trial of the proceedings against the person convicted in Great Britain.

"Postlethwaite is not very active, is he Inspector? Have you done anything about it?"
"I've spoken to the Sergeant, sir," said Inspector Biddle. "He didn't say anything about it."
"What's he doing about it?" persisted the Superintendent.
"He has spoken to Postlethwaite, sir." And what has Postlethwaite done, said Inspector Biddle.
"Nothing, sir," the Inspector admitted.

"Not really, sir," the Inspector replied.

ON PENSIONS

Inflation creates many uncertainties but nowhere is the element of worry stronger than among those whose income is insufficient. For many of our senior citizens, the threat of having their Retirement pensions under the National Insurance scheme reduced to a level of absolutely nil, is of itself a great worry. It is not just that coping with their recipients all too conscious of the knowledge that their standard of living can only be maintained at this lower level of income will of government— which by and large, will be the result of this scheme, for pensions which turn government will still go into action.

The Tories, for example, had pledged a six-monthly review of the pensions, the first to be held in January-February 1975. Labour was less specific though more guarded in its pledge to protect the worst off in the community. Mrs. Castle, in her speech to Parliament on 1 November, said government would bound by law to increase benefits by next July but they had always said they would consider the timing of the next uprating in the light of pensioner needs. In the event, due to the downward rush of inflation, it was announced in the Budget on 12 November that this rise would be brought forward to early next April and the government was planning to make a decision on the next uprating in 1975 in order to establish an annual cycle.

Public service pensioners, including the Police, are more interested in their occupational pension schemes than in the national one. Many of them are not drawing retirement benefits yet. Police are still working or are too young, while those who are in receipt of retirement pensions find that their occupational pension is the larger part of their income. The Government's decision to change the national pension scheme has led to a good deal of consternation within the Police. The Chief Constable regarded the decision of the Government to reduce pensions and there must be at least some provision for all public service pensioners, and most of the social security benefits.

Frankly evasive
Pre-election tactics by members of government in relation to Pensions and P.S.C. were put to the test by the Conservative government after the last Nato conference in September. At the last Nato conference chairman Senet Benfield expressed disappointment at the attitude of government, yet it was understandable that it might be difficult to maintain a high level of income for government officials who had not been, from the government's point of view, hostages to fortune at a time of great economic uncertainty.

There are a number of ways of looking at pensions and cost of living in relation to inflation. Protection for the worst off is one approach. It can also be plausibly argued that to increase pensioners' wages to meet increases in living costs is most inflationary. This is a double-fulfillment policy but it is certainly that such adjustments do make an upward spiral of inflation harder to check — the crucial fact being that reduction in living standards is as far as it can be, and will be, as any other economic remedy which will be tried.

Conference point
Sir,-I sometimes wonder when people write us about our Police being the most efficient in the world, whether they have gone through every step we advance some older and mightier police force.

I am a resident of Warrington, situated about seven miles from my home in a village. My city covers eight surrounding villages and the motor cycle I have no radio, only a Yale paging unit, so I have to make four conference points each shift (as do all officers in my division whether on radio or not).

I admit that these conference points have their benefit, particularly at night time because the office staff will telephone me to see that I am safe.

But many of the Inspectors and Sergeants under whom I work believe conference points are the best and most of all Police work. The sort of remark one hears is: "Don't chase that parking, you've got a point in five minutes.

My way to a conference point revolves around the fact that it is reported for a minor traffic offence, but there is no telephone. The last 10 minutes of the meeting is considered a waste of time in the setting up of a minor traffic order. It seems to be a good enough reason to have a conference point in this modern Police Force.

In my small Police Force, we cannot produce appointments when requested although I know that many stations have since abandoned them. This is similar to the experience of a reader who was writing on the subject.

Review reader experience is a good way for the Police to get a feel for the real world and the kind of calls that are being carried out.-JOHN PEARSON

Northern Police Race

The fourth meeting of the Northern Police Cross Country League took place at Moorfoot, Northumbria, on Wednesday 21 November over an undulating 13-mile course. Seven of the 11 teams had already won their section, and the non-winner leaving the race was the Metropolitan Police team — but it had won its previous meeting.

Four of the runners were out of action for various reasons, and the remaining eight were evenly matched. Joe Lewis of the Metropolitan Police led from the start, and was followed by Joe Wain of the Police Team, who had only just returned from an injury that had kept him out for six months. Joe Lewis led for 4 miles, when he passed to Joe Wain, who led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Lewis again. Joe Lewis led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Wain, who led for the final 2 miles to win by a margin of 200 yards. Joe Lewis was second, and Joe Wain was third.

Lark's nest withstood the continuous attacks of Staffs, who monopolised possessive play, and in the end both teams were evenly matched. Joe Lewis gave Staffs the lead, followed by Joe Wain, who then led for another 2 miles. Joe Lewis led for another 2 miles before passing to Joe Wain, who led for the final 2 miles to win by a margin of 200 yards. Joe Lewis was second, and Joe Wain was third.

Gerry Johnson, member of the second team, was the star of the show, playing a strong and well-drilled side at this level. He made it a fast start, and kept the game going with a fast tempo of play, the ball being well played and handled with a good degree of accuracy. The Police team came out with a good game, and Johnson played an important role in it. He was a valuable asset to the team, and his presence was felt in every part of the game. The Police team won the match, and Johnson's performance was a significant factor in their victory.

To save the game and make it a try for the victory for the Police, they faced the last 10 minutes of play. The Police team had the ball for most of this period, and Johnson was a key player in their attack. He was able to score a try, and the Police team won the match by a margin of 200 yards. Joe Lewis was second, and Joe Wain was third.

GOOD RUGBY

This was the first time that the Police team had played against Cheshire, and Cheshire were completely outclassed. Hooker Bradley was reverted back into the team, and this was a significant change. Joe Lewis led from the start, and was followed by Joe Wain, who had only just returned from an injury that had kept him out for six months. Joe Lewis led for 4 miles, when he passed to Joe Wain, who led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Lewis again. Joe Lewis led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Wain, who led for the final 2 miles to win by a margin of 200 yards. Joe Lewis was second, and Joe Wain was third.

Mr. Brown, co-signor of the report, has driven himself and he himself have been out of action for various reasons, but he has been doing a lot of work behind the scenes. He has been in touch with the police forces, and has been well informed about the state of affairs. He has been doing a lot of work for the Police and the community, and has been doing a lot of good work.

NATIONAL POLICE RACE

At the end of the season the South Wales Police team took the title of the Metropolitan Police team, and the Metropolitan Police team took the title of the Police team. Both teams played well, and the Metropolitan Police team were the winners.

Back row was a significant change. Hooker Bradley was reverted back into the team, and this was a significant change. Joe Lewis led from the start, and was followed by Joe Wain, who had only just returned from an injury that had kept him out for six months. Joe Lewis led for 4 miles, when he passed to Joe Wain, who led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Lewis again. Joe Lewis led for another 4 miles before passing to Joe Wain, who led for the final 2 miles to win by a margin of 200 yards. Joe Lewis was second, and Joe Wain was third.

Army pressure in Ulster pays off

By Brig. W. F. K. Thompson
Defence Correspondent

STEADILY increasing pressure which security forces have been building up against the IRA and other terrorist organisations is revealed in statistics produced by the Army in Ulster over the last quarter. The figures show that as the number of terrorists in prison has increased, the number of shootings and explosions has declined.

In July 1972, there were 2,370 shootings, 814 explosions, 168 soldiers and 18 Republicans killed, while in sectarian killings: 19 military forces were killed and 78 wounded, and six terrorists were killed by the security forces.

At the end of the month, the garrison was down to 18 battalions, and on the last day of March, 116 Loyalists and 732 Republican terrorists were in prison. During the quarter, there were 2,172 shootings incidents and 234 explosions.

Nine Loyalists and 20 Republicans were murdered in sectarian killings: 11 soldiers were killed and 106 wounded. The large number of wounded was due to a bomb going off outside an Army Recreational Centre. Six terrorists were killed by security forces.

Since Operation Motorman, 1,621 weapons and 223,495 rounds of ammunition have been recovered from Loyalists, and 2,017 weapons and 228,411 rounds of ammunition from the Republicans.

DATE: 1/31/75

FROM: SAC, CHICAGO (105-34113) (P)

SUBJECT: IRISH REPUBLICAN ARMY (IRA) IS-IRELAND

Referenced Bureau letter directed Chicago to determine whether a separate investigation regarding subjects was warranted, and to advise Bureau of results and contemplated investigation. It is also noted that the Chicago Office of the U.S. Customs is also conducting an investigation regarding the IRA and these individuals, and close contact has been maintained with U.S. Customs by this office.

The Bureau will be advised regarding arrangements made between this office and U.S. Customs for any joint investigation to be conducted.

Review of this matter indicates the basic allegation regarding the individuals mentioned in referenced letter involves a violation under the primary investigative jurisdiction of U.S. Customs. This allegation has been properly deferred under existing interagency agreements to U.S. Customs for appropriate investigation and referenced letter indicates Customs is conducting active investigation.

Therefore, in the absence of any information indicating these individuals are engaged in violations of U.S. laws under the primary investigative jurisdiction of the FBI, further investigation by your office regarding these individuals should not be conducted. Bureau interposes no objection to your maintaining contact with Customs for an exchange of intelligence information; however, you should not conduct active investigation regarding these individuals nor should you conduct joint interviews with Customs as indicated in referenced letter.

When these individuals are no longer under investigative interest to Customs you may submit recommendations for appropriate investigation including interviews of these individuals, if same is warranted.

NOTE: Information was originally received from alleging

This information was furnished to U.S. Customs and they are investigating this matter. Chicago previously advised that they also initiated investigation of these individuals in view of their alleged connection with the IRA; however, by Bureau letter 11/22/74, Chicago was directed to discontinue investigation in view of active investigation being conducted by U.S. Customs.

NOTE CONTINUED:

Customs. Referenced Chicago letter advised that the Chicago Office was collaborating with U.S. Customs in this investigation and such collaboration would include interviews of the individuals involved by representatives of both the FBI and Customs.

In this regard it is noted that Legat, London was contacted by the U.S. Customs representative in London on 2/3/76 at which time he indicated that as a result of publicity given in the U.S. to a statement made by British Prime Minister HAROLD WILSON that 85% of the weapons located in Northern Ireland came from the U.S., the U.S. Congress is considering Initiating a Congressional inquiry into the U.S. Customs Service regarding the veracity of Mr. WILSON's statement, as well as any derelictions on the part of the U.S. Customs Service.

Funding by the IRA or its sympathizers in the U. S.
As a result of this meeting the Registration Unit of the Department directed the FBI to conduct certain investigations, which were previously described in detail in referenced Bureau airtel, so as to determine whether the INAC was accurately reporting its funding activities to the Registration Unit of the Department of Justice. Other U.S. agencies in attendance at this meeting, such as the U. S. Customs Service have initiated investigations based on its jurisdictional responsibilities concerning alleged illegal activities involving the shipment of funds on the part of the INAC and/or the IRA or its sympathizers within the U. S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is continuing its investigations of illegal purchases and shipments of weapons from the U. S. destined for Northern Ireland.

On 2/19/76, an FBIHQ representative attended an inter-agency conference chaired by Assistant Deputy Secretary of State for European Affairs Richard D. Vine. The purpose of this meeting was to have a one year overview of the activities of U. S. government agencies in regard to the current internal conflict in Northern Ireland. At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Vine stated he was satisfied that the responsible U. S. government agencies were conducting all possible investigations concerning captioned organization and its sympathizers in the U. S. Mr. Vine also noted that British Government spokesmen apparently have recently in public statements overstated the importance of the U. S. as a source of weapons and funds for captioned organization.
